Points of Interest in To-day's Game

This evening it is the pleasure of Wolverhampton, to welcome to their ground the much talked of Russian soccer team Spartak, who played the Arsenal last Tuesday and beat them by the odd goal in three, but this evening's game will no doubt prove if they are as good as some people think they are.

Wolves are at the top of their form and I am quite confident that they will win and so give British football the boost that it needs very badly and build up our prestige abroad.

Spartak will field the same team which beat Arsenal last Tuesday, and the Wolves are hoping to be able to field their strongest eleven.

To-night's game is an all ticket affair and the demand for tickets was so great that they could of filled the ground three times over, it has proved to be the greatest match in the midlands for years, and to say who will win is anyone's guess.

Given fine weather we will see a great game with both teams playing to hold the prestige of country's soccer, and all we can say in conclusion is may the best team win.
